

Berlin Tension Tightens

German Reds Put Pressure On Workers

Communist Rulers Begin Squeeze On Border-Crossers

BERLIN (AP)—East Berlin's Communist rulers acted Friday against two Western attractions still within reach of their citizens — well-paying jobs and anti-Communist radio programs.

Mayor Friedrich Ebert's East Berlin government warned 50,000 East Berliners who work in the West that they must obey Communist law. They are required to register their place of work with Communist authorities.

The East Berliners also were told they had no right to new apartments if they took jobs in West Berlin.

There are persistent reports that Communist authorities, short of manpower themselves, want to end the practice of crossing the sector border to work. Jobs in West Berlin are much better paid than in the East, and there is much more to buy.

It was Ebert who Thursday told the Red-ruled People's Chamber that disorder in the East German supply system is "impossible and unpardonable."

The People's Chamber—or parliament—also put its rubber stamp on a reorganization of the East Germans' central planning system, apparently a result of the shortages. Three minor Cabinet ministers lost their jobs.

At the same session, Communist papers reported Friday, Interior Minister Karl Maron said he would do away with the U.S. radio station in West Berlin—once the East German leadership gets the peace treaty that Soviet Premier Khrushchev has promised. This powerful transmitter, often jammed by the Communists, has been heard throughout East Germany for the past 15 years.

The major event of Thursday's meeting was a 90-minute speech by Walter Ulbricht, the East German Communist leader. He called for neutralization of all Germany, and said he would move against West Berlin whether he got it or not. But he insisted his plans were all peaceful, and that he would not fight unless attacked.

More Atlas Launchings Scheduled

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP)—More long-range shots are on tap for an advanced Atlas missile which Friday cracked the distance mark for a military rocket with a 9,050-mile flight into the Indian Ocean.

The massive intercontinental-range missile thundered away from Cape Canaveral just before midnight Thursday night and propelled its nose cone into the sea 1,000 miles southeast of Cape Town, South Africa, 53 minutes later. The Atlas reached top speed of more than 17,000 miles an hour on the over-water flight.

The test exceeded by 10 miles the longest previous surface-to-surface missile flights. Two earlier Atlases did the trick last year. But this was the first time the improved Atlas "E" rocket achieved a long-range success. The longest known Soviet military missile test was 8,000 miles.

The Air Force plans several more launchings in excess of 9,000 miles. It hopes to have the rocket operational late this year.

Commuter Railroad Files Petition In Bankruptcy

NEW HAVEN, Conn. (AP)—The debt-burdened New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad, long a butt of commuter jokes, folded into bankruptcy Friday and asked a federal court to take over.

The court did so immediately, directing the railroad to continue

Quadruplets Celebrate Birthday

The Pinkham quadruplets of Standish, Maine, blow out the candles of their ninth birthday cake. Left to right are Rebecca, William, Melissa and Jane — all of whom were born nine years ago to Mr. and Mrs. Silas Pinkham. Their mother says she understands twins often help each other. "But not quads," she says. "They seem to be competing all the time."

British Pull Coldstreams From Kuwait

KUWAIT (AP)—The British pulled their Coldstream Guardsmen out of Kuwait Friday night. They were flown to Bahrain Island, the British base in the Persian Gulf.

The guardsmen left less than a week after the British build-up in Kuwait started and less than 18 hours after its completion.

The British move had been undertaken after Iraq's Premier Abdel Karim Kassem had threatened to annex the rich oil sheikdom at the head of the gulf.

The transfer to Bahrain, about 300 miles southeast of Kuwait City, involved about 250 men. British forces here totaled 5,000 men, with air and naval support.

Bahrain is an Arab oil sheikdom under British protection — just as Kuwait was until recently when it was granted independence and subsequently was claimed by Kassem as part of Iraq.

Informants said the British — following a quick-in, quick-out policy — now felt a deterrent effect against Kassem's takeover bid has been achieved. Official reasoning is that with the immediate danger of attack averted, a reduced force would be just as effective as a fully equipped force in demonstrating British support of Kuwait.

Earlier Kuwait's army commander declared that Kassem can have peace or a good stiff fight, whichever he wants.

Charging Kassem is continuing his military buildup, Brig. Sheikh Mubarak al Jabbar al Sabah told this correspondent: "We are ready for everything. If Kassem wants to fight we will fight; if he wants peace talks we will talk."

Behind Mubarak's defiance was a strong British force, called in (Continued on Page 2, Col. 2)

So. Korean Junta Begins Pull-Out In Civil Agencies

SEOUL, Korea (UPI)—Strongman Maj. Gen. Pak Chung Hi Friday declared the time had come to start pulling soldiers out of South Korean government agencies.

In the first cabinet shakeup since the ruling junta took control May 16, Pak dropped two generals in favor of a civilian and a retired officer. "The time has come to settle the uneasy minds of the people," Pak said.

to "run, manage, maintain and operate," to close its books at the end of business Friday, and open a fresh set Saturday.

The directive from U.S. Dist. Judge Robert P. Anderson, who long has been familiar with the New Haven's financial problems, mentioned no curtailment of service. The line carries 30,000 commuters a day.

New Haven President George Alpert said federal court proceedings for the railroad's reorganization make possible continuation of service "temporarily, at least."

The railroad's petition for reorganization under the Federal Bankruptcy Act, less than 24 hours after its bid for a $5.5-million government loan was turned down, cited debts far exceeding its ability to repay. It said it was at least $24 million shy of being able to meet its obligations.

Dominican Republic Mob Damages Radio Rioters Protest Trujillo Dynasty

CIUDAD TRUJILLO, Dominican Republic (AP)—A big noisy mob, armed with candles for arson purposes, attacked and set fire to the pro-government Radio Caribe Friday afternoon.

Several thousand persons took part in the demonstration against the Trujillo political dynasty's effort to survive the recent assassination of its generalissimo.

The radio station was badly damaged and forced to go off the air.

The demonstrators — students, workers and some women — attacked the station after marching from downtown Colon (Columbus) Park where they heard three recently returned leaders of the opposition Dominican Revolutionary party — PRD — make balcony speeches promising a fight for democracy in elections next May.

"Down with dictatorship," "Firing wall for tyrants" and "Go away Trujillo," the crowd shouted.

After invading the studio and setting it afire with their candles, the crowd was driven across the street to Ramfis Park and nearby streets. A large company of fire fighters was called to the studio, which adjoins the large official Dominican palace.

Ramfis is the nickname of Gen. Rafael L. Trujillo Jr., who became head of the armed forces after the May 30 assassination of his father, Generalissimo Rafael L. Trujillo.

Radio Caribe supports President Joaquin Balaguer's government, and before a management shakeup a few weeks ago it was regarded as anti-Catholic. It frequently has attacked the United States. Most Dominicans are Roman Catholics.

The demonstration caught the Dominican capital by surprise. Dominicans had not seen anything like it in 30 years. Under the old Trujillo regime opposition rallies were not permitted.

Angel Miolan, Nicolas Silva and Ramon A. Castillo, the PRD leaders, returned from years of exile on Wednesday, however, under a guarantee by President Balaguer of freedom of speech. They opened a new headquarters across from Colon Park, scene of the rally.

Moscow-New York Air Service Again Being Considered

WASHINGTON (AP)—After several years of thinking about it, the United States and the Soviet Union again are ready to start discussing a direct commercial air route between New York and Moscow.

The State Department announced Friday the talks will start in Washington July 18. Heading the American negotiators will be James M. Landis, president Kennedy's adviser on regulatory agencies and a former chairman of the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The British Foreign Office said he is due Tuesday and a Soviet spokesman said the Soviet astronaut would talk to audiences at the fair about his experiences as the first man in space, then go to Manchester in Britain's industrial midlands to become an honorary member of the British Foundry Workers Union. Before he became a Soviet airman, Gagarin was a foundry worker in the U.S.S.R.

Much of the show was aimed at the British housewife's pocketbook. Some of it—such as slogans and the space show—was propaganda.

Teamsters Elect Hoffa To New 5-Year Term

Gets Free Rein Over Big Union By Acclamation

MIAMI BEACH, Fla. (AP)—James R. Hoffa, who never finished grade school, Friday was elected by acclamation to a new five-year term as Teamsters Union president with a free ticket to conduct union affairs.

Hoffa was declared elected unanimously over his only opponent, Milton J. Liss, president of Newark, N. J., Local 478, who withdrew halfway through a tedious roll-call of the 2,000 Teamsters convention delegates.

Liss, with only 15 votes, including his own, said the balloting had been fair as well as decisive. He praised the 48-year-old Hoffa and said the Teamster chiefs' greatest past mistake had been "over-loyalty to some friends who took advantage of him."

In thanking the delegates, most of them trusted lieutenants, for their barrage of votes, Hoffa said he was going to work with whatever brains and ability "I have to win them better pay and other gains, regardless of criticism."

Referring to the series of court charges and investigations that have plagued him for nearly four years, Hoffa said it had been no picnic.

"It will continue," he said, "but nobody's nervous about it." Earlier the delegates voted a series of rules changes vesting even greater union powers in Hoffa, boosting his salary to $75,000 a year, and levying higher dues on the 1.7 million union membership.

Eichmann Says He Was Victim Of Superiors

JERUSALEM (AP)—Adolf Eichmann admitted under blistering cross-examination Friday he felt himself guilty as an accomplice in the Nazi slaughter of six million Jews.

But in a plea for mercy, with the death penalty hanging over him, the former Gestapo colonel ended 14 days of direct testimony earlier in the session by declaring: "I was a tool in the hands of the strong and powerful, and in the hands of fate itself, which shows no mercy."

Prosecutor Gideon Hausner launched his direct questioning of the defendant, charged with criminal responsibility in the World War II pogroms, after the defense concluded its case.

Grasping both lapels of his black prosecutor's robe, Hausner turned to Eichmann and demanded: "In your own heart, do you find yourself guilty as an accomplice to the murder of millions of Jews? Yes or no?"

Rising to standing position in his glassed-in prisoner's dock, Eichmann answers: "Yes, from the human point of view, because I was guilty in carrying out the implementation of orders for the deportations."

Eichmann insisted, however, that he does not consider himself guilty from a legal point of view. "I was only receiving and carrying out orders. Without responsibility, there can be no guilt," he said.

Hausner referred to death sentences meted out to such Nazi leaders as Hermann Goering at Nuremberg for the part they played in killing Jews and asked: "Do you believe these sentences were just?"

"Yes," said Eichmann. "They were people who gave the orders and they had to bear responsibility."

UAW Unveil Eight New Proposals

DETROIT (AP)—The United Auto Workers gave General Motors Corp. Friday eight proposals to create more jobs in the auto industry. But union contract negotiators said "we are open-minded" and invited GM to come up with its own suggestions.

The UAW's three main proposals were a reduction in the work week, work day or work year without loss in pay.

In addition, the union suggested longer vacations, more paid holidays, industrial sabbaticals — leaves of absence such as school teachers get, earlier retirement, and restriction of overtime in periods of unemployment.

Meanwhile, the union presented other demands to Ford, Chrysler and American Motors before recessing bargaining talks until next week at the Big Three and July 26 at AMC.

At Ford, the union sketched its program to put hourly paid blue-collar workers on yearly salaries. It also proposed expanding company-financed layoff pay benefits to supplement state unemployment compensation.

The union told General Motors that the loss of job opportunities is a major problem in the auto industry. It said there had been a decline of 73,000 in hourly rated workers at GM alone since 1955.

GM's chief negotiator, Vice President Louis G. Seaton, took exception to this. He said 1955 was a peak year when GM had many temporary employees on defense work and also was attempting to catch up with a big demand for cars. He said the trend in employment had been upward at GM in the past 10 years.

Cuban-Vatican Relations Plunge To All-Time Low

VATICAN CITY (AP)—Relations between the Vatican and Fidel Castro's Cuban regime appeared Friday to have plunged to a new all-time low following a public service of atonement for the Roman Catholic Church in Cuba.

Five cardinals, many bishops and members of the diplomatic corps accredited to the Vatican attended the solemn service Thursday at Rome's downtown Church of Jesus.

The service was preceded by the posting on Rome church walls of posters showing a thorn-crowned cross in Cuba. It was the first time such a poster had appeared in Rome since relations between Castro's Cuba and the Vatican began to deteriorate.

SEOUL, South Korea (AP)—Heavy rains this week have cost 18 lives in South Korea, the Home Ministry announced Friday. Two persons are missing, 17 were injured and 405 homes wrecked or flooded, the announcement added.

Navy Assigns First Woman Line Officer

SAN DIEGO, Calif. (AP)—There's going to be a woman aboard the USS Mann. She is pretty Lt. Charlene Suneson, 27, the first female Navy line officer to be assigned sea duty.

"There's a shortage of male line officers," she said. "I think I've been assigned to sea duty so the Navy can find out what jobs women can do effectively." Right now, though, she has no idea what her duties will be.

The pert career woman has served in the Navy for seven years. She said she is anxious to go to sea "because that's where the Navy's mission really is."

A Navy spokesman in San Francisco said Lt. Suneson will report to the transport ship around the first of the year. The Mann sailed Friday for Anchorage.

In San Francisco, a Navy spokesman and the master of the USS Mann, Capt. M. Smith, were just as indefinite about her duties. Smith, who will assign her to her duties, said, "We will wait until she gets here."

The naval spokesman said, "Women naval officers are usually put into administrative jobs. It will depend on where she is needed."

4 Killed, 8 Hurt In Havana Mishap

HAVANA (AP)—At least four persons were killed and eight hurt Friday in the collapse of a building on Galiano Street in Havana's business district. The building, housing business offices and apartments, was situated near El Encanto Department Store, which was destroyed by a fire set by anti-Castro arsonists. Police said the collapsed building was in bad shape and due for demolition.

Big 4 Powers Draft Reply To Russia

Kennedy Calls Conference Of Top Advisers

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Western Big Four powers Friday completed the draft of their proposed answer to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's latest pronouncement on West Berlin.

Officials said the proposed joint reply will be sent to Paris, perhaps Saturday, for a final check-over by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization before being sent to Moscow, probably late next week.

Authoritative sources said the West stands firm on its rights in West Berlin but leaves the door open for further discussions with the Soviet Union on the cold war danger spot.

Representatives of the British, French and West German embassies met with Secretary of State Dean Rusk in late afternoon to complete work on the note. It will be a response to the Soviet memorandum handed to the United States during President Kennedy's meeting with Khrushchev at Vienna June 3-4.

Khrushchev's declared intent to sign a peace treaty with Communist East Germany at the end of this year is viewed by the United States and its allies as a Red move to oust the Western powers from Berlin.

The Allies were reportedly fully united on their reply to Khrushchev.

The West takes the position that instead of centering on the Berlin problem there should be a broader settlement providing a permanent solution of the whole German problem, based on the principle of self-determination of the peoples involved.

Kennedy called Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor, White House military adviser, to a meeting Saturday on Berlin at Hyannis Port, Mass., where the President is weekending.

The meeting is expected to last for several hours and deal with broad strategy questions in connection with the mounting German crisis.

Salinger said the meeting will not be of an "emergency type" and will not deal specifically with the U.S. reply to Soviet Premier Khrushchev's note outlining his intentions on Berlin.

Discoverer Satellite Carries Mail

VANDENBERG AIR FORCE BASE, Calif. (AP)—The 26th Discoverer satellite-rocket shot aloft Friday with a 300-pound parcel of "space mail" destined for Hawaii.

Contents of the parcel were stamped "secret" by the Air Force, which is trying to perfect a way to return film and other records from Samos and Midas "spy" satellites.

TV Station Sues Cable Co.

FAIRMONT, W.Va. (AP) — A television cable company which pipes in programs of selected TV stations to homes for a fee has been sued for $1 million by an Ohio Television Corporation.

WSTV, Inc., of Steubenville, Ohio, filed the action in U.S. District Court here against the Fortnightly Corp. of Delaware, which operates TV cables in Clarksburg and Fairmont, W.Va.

WSTV owns and operates WSTV Channel 9, in Steubenville, and WBOY-TV, Channel 12, in Clarksburg.

WSTV charged the cable firm without permission "plucks" channel 9 signals from the air for retransmission over the closed cable circuit.

The plaintiff said, among other things, the cable firm was "stealing, appropriating and pirating its valuable property rights."

It also contended that the cable company in many cases disconnected the built-in antennas on sets they are hooking up to their cable and as a result cut off channel 12 signals.

WSTV said in addition leakage of electric energy from the cables distorted Channel 12 reception in Clarksburg and in nearby Fairmont.

The Steubenville company said there are 8,300 cable subscribers in Clarksburg and 5,150 in Fairmont.

The company said in its petition there are 130,000 homes in channel 12's area and about 50,000 have TV sets.

Maryland News In Brief

BALTIMORE (AP) — A court summons charging Robert T. Marhenke of Baltimore with showing old movies without properly displaying the State Board of Motion Picture Censors' seal of approval has been dismissed.

Municipal Judge T. Barton Harrington described the action as an administrative matter. Marhenke, chairman of the censorship committee of the Maryland Theater Owners Association, said he deliberately showed the seal out of focus when displaying the old movies at a cocktail lounge June 24.

BALTIMORE (AP) — Bernard Grosse, 30, of Baltimore drowned Thursday in an Anne Arundel County sand pit near Baltimore. On Sunday, 16-year-old Lamont F. Garrett of Baltimore drowned in the same pond while swimming.

WASHINGTON (AP) — Methodist Bishop John Wesley Lord said Friday the church would "continue to put its full effort in the direction of final abolishment of the slot machines in Maryland."

The statement was made in an announcement of the appointment of the Rev. Andrew L. Gunn as minister of the Grace Methodist Church in Gaithersburg.

The Rev. Mr. Gunn, a leader in the fight against the machines in Anne Arundel, St. Marys, Charles and Calvert counties, had been minister of the Indian Head church since 1955. In his new post, the bishop said, the Rev. Mr. Gunn will continue to be a leader in the move to repeal legalized slot machine operations.

TOWSON, Md. (AP) — The Baltimore County executive Board has decided not to continue a long legal battle over disputed property taxes collected from industries using federal property on contracts. A total of nearly $3.5 million in taxes and interest is involved, including more than $1 million due Martin.

The last elements of Britain's 1st Battalion, King's Regiment—infantrymen from Kenya—arrived in Kuwait Friday. Defensive forces in Kuwait now number about 10,000. In addition, Mubarak said, "We are expecting more help from King Saud if the situation changes. Anything we need, Saudi Arabia will immediately send."

Capt. Brace Is Sentenced To Marine Corps Dismissal

QUANTICO, Va. (AP) — Capt. Ernest C. Brace, convicted of desertion by a Marine Corps court martial, was sentenced Friday to "punitive dismissal from the Marine Corps."

Brace, 29, a decorated combat pilot, was convicted earlier Friday of desertion for disappearing after his trainer plane crashed in January.

He also was found guilty of a military charge of concealing his whereabouts after the crash, thereby permitting an unnecessary and wasteful search.

Brace's dismissal is subject to review by the commandant of the Marine Corps School at Quantico and by a Board of Military Review. Later, Brace may appeal to the U.S. Court of Military Appeals if his sentence is not removed.

Maximum penalty for desertion in peacetime is dismissal from the service, two years at hard labor and forfeiture of all pay and allowances.

Brace's T28 trainer crashed on Maryland's Eastern Shore Jan. 3 on the banks of the Choptank River. He surrendered to the FBI in Baltimore 10 days later, while a search for his body was still under way.

The government prosecutor, Lt. Col. E. B. Fallon, told the court martial "the government has no quarrel with the outstanding record compiled by Capt. Brace until the time he came to Quantico. What we're concerned with this morning is what happened on Jan. 3, 1961."

Fallon contended that after Brace parachuted to safety he placed his flight jacket and helmet in the Choptank River to make it appear he was dead.

"The only real issue in the case," said Brace's civilian attorney, Edward C. Dragon of Washington, "is whether Capt. Brace had the intent to remain away permanently from the Marine Corps."

He said that Brace had no intention of deserting.

Two former commanding officers of the Marine flier testified to his loyalty. Col. John R. Bohnet, Brace's senior officer at Cherry Point, S.C., said he would be willing to have Brace serve under his command again.

Brace was acquitted of deliberately destroying his $142,000 trainer plane by a U.S. District Court jury at Baltimore last month.

Two W.Va. Convicts Captured In Florida

MIAMI, Fla. (AP) — Two escaped convicts from the West Virginia State Penitentiary were captured Friday after an exchange of shots with police. One officer was wounded.

Authorities identified the prisoners as George Kitchen, 24, and James Pymale, 31.

The capture came as police searched for two men who held up two bars Thursday night. Patrolman Albert Cinilia, 28, was wounded in the hand during a gunfight after officers halted the pair's car.

Kitchen and Pymale were jailed on charges of armed robbery. They said they escaped from West Virginia two weeks ago.

Cumberland Air Service Survey Planned By Unit

BALTIMORE — (Special to the Times) — The Maryland Air Transportation Survey Commission, meeting Thursday in Baltimore, decided to hire a consultant for the purpose of preparing material to show the need for airline service at four Maryland communities.

The commission also extended an invitation to the Baltimore City Airport Board to meet with the state group so that efforts to improve the state's airline service will be coordinated.

A proposal of Henry Beecken, Washington aviation consultant, to prepare case material to show the need for airline service at Cumberland, Hagerstown, Salisbury and Cambridge-Easton was tentatively accepted.

Individual cases will be prepared for each of the communities and will be coordinated into a state program. This report along with other recommendations will be submitted to Governor Millard E. Tawes. Beecken said he will visit each of the communities and will seek the support of city, business and airport officials.

Material to be gathered by Beecken will be much the same as that prepared by the individual communities in previous cases before the Civil Aeronautics Board. However, the consultant said it will be prepared in a manner to have more meaning. He also said a request for service submitted on a state level should have considerable more weight before the CAB than individual city petitions for service.

Because of testimony presented at previous CAB hearings regarding the possible limitations in use of the Cumberland Airport, Beecken suggested that a special study be undertaken for Cumberland. This would be in the nature of "expert" witnesses. An attempt would be made to show that the Cumberland Airport is suitable for regular airline service.

Charles B. Allen, chairman of the survey group and chairman of the State Aviation Commission, said the latter unit would make this study for Cumberland.

Considerable attention was devoted to Cumberland at the meeting and Beecken said there is no doubt in his mind that it can be shown that Cumberland can support and needs airline service.

Beecken said a preliminary draft report on his phase of the program would be available for commission study by November 1. A final report will come later.

It had been hoped that a final report would be made to the governor by September 1 but this was found to be impossible.

The survey commission was named by the governor as a result of a legislative resolution. Representing Cumberland on the commission is T. Donald Shires.

County Discusses Water Problem

A lengthy discussion was held yesterday at the meeting of the Allegany County Board of Commissioners concerning drainage of surface water and sewage in a ditch on Harold Street in Amelle Acres just beyond Cresaptown.

William Judy, who is the owner of a property, and his son, W. R. Judy, an attorney in Washington, told the board that they feel the county is responsible for the surface water drainage.

Leslie J. Clark, attorney for the board, told Attorney Judy to submit a letter outlining the facts in the case and also a plat of the affected property so that it could be studied and a correct decision made on the legal points involved.

Belmont County, Ohio, leads the state in coal mining.

Two County School Jobs Under Study

Ralph R. Webster, superintendent of schools, met with the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday to discuss the financing of two school building projects.

Webster explained that Allegany County will be entitled to $584,000 in state loan funds by December and that in the interim the $135,000 in incentive funds could be utilized to pay for construction costs as they occur.

He explained that the contractor usually bills the Board of Education at the end of each month and that possibly the incentive fund monies could be used to handle these costs. County Commissioner John T. Mason inquired as to the costs when the Parkside School addition is started next month. Webster said that the first bill, which would be small in comparison to the total cost, would not be submitted until September.

Webster said that in addition to the $584,000 the county is entitled to under the state program there may also be $167,000 available if this sum is not used by other counties.

The two projects, Gephart School addition and Parkside should be well underway by December, Webster added.

County Attorney, Sheriff Clash Over Unpaid Bill

Leslie J. Clark, attorney to the Allegany County Board of Commissioners, and Sheriff Paul C. Haberlein engaged in a heated argument at yesterday's session of the board.

The eruption came after the sheriff had asked why a $15 bill from the Macy Insurance Company for the bond of a non-salaried deputy had not been paid. The sheriff said that the Macy firm acted in good faith in issuing the bond and it should be paid.

Clark said he was "getting tired of the sheriff coming before the board and saying he was being picked on". The attorney also said that he had advised that the bill be withheld until he could check into a plan to bond all deputies under a blanket program.

Commissioner John J. Rowan took issue with Clark and told him "you are required only to give us legal advice and not get angry over the sheriff's request". Clark said he had the advice concerning the bond program and at that time suggested that the Macy firm's bond could be worked into the program.

Commissioner John T. Mason said he agreed with Clark on his contention about the sheriff coming before the board to complain. Rowan said he approved payment of the bill and Clark said the commissioners could do as they wished in the matter.

The sheriff also said that in other cases the board did not question bills of other departments but in all cases affecting his office there was usually some question raised.

City Waives Permit

Wallace Ulery, clerk to the Mayor and City Council of Cumberland, informed the Allegany County Board of Commissioners yesterday that the city would waive the cost of a building permit for the new detention quarters which are to be constructed adjacent to the County Infirmary.

Dean of wild animal trainers, Clyde Beatty, was born in Bainbridge, Ross County, Ohio.

Churchman Declares Clergy Must Revise Views On Function Of TV In Religion

By CLAUDE COX
NEW YORK (UPI) — The church may lose the decisive struggle for the soul of modern man unless clergymen attempt to master the mass communication medium of television, a noted Protestant clergyman warns.

Rev. Dr. Everett C. Parker, director of communications for the United Church of Christ and vice-chairman of the broadcasting and film commission of the National Council of Churches, says that Christian and Jewish religious leaders must stop limiting their pastorates to their own congregations. They must penetrate not only communities but the entire culture, he believes.

Parker, writing from 20 years of experience in radio and television, is the author of a new handbook for the clergy on "Religious Television — What to Do and How," published by Harper & Brothers. "What is needed," Parker says, "is a radical change in our point of view about the function of television in relation to religion, for television has fallen victim to two peculiarly American and Protestant beliefs that inevitably make it the handmaiden of institutional objectives."

These, he calls beliefs in "salvation of joining" and "salvation by gadget."

"One achieves 'togetherness' and fulfillment, one is told, by being identified with some attractive and powerful group that can handle life with a flourish," Parker adds. As for gadgetry, he says:

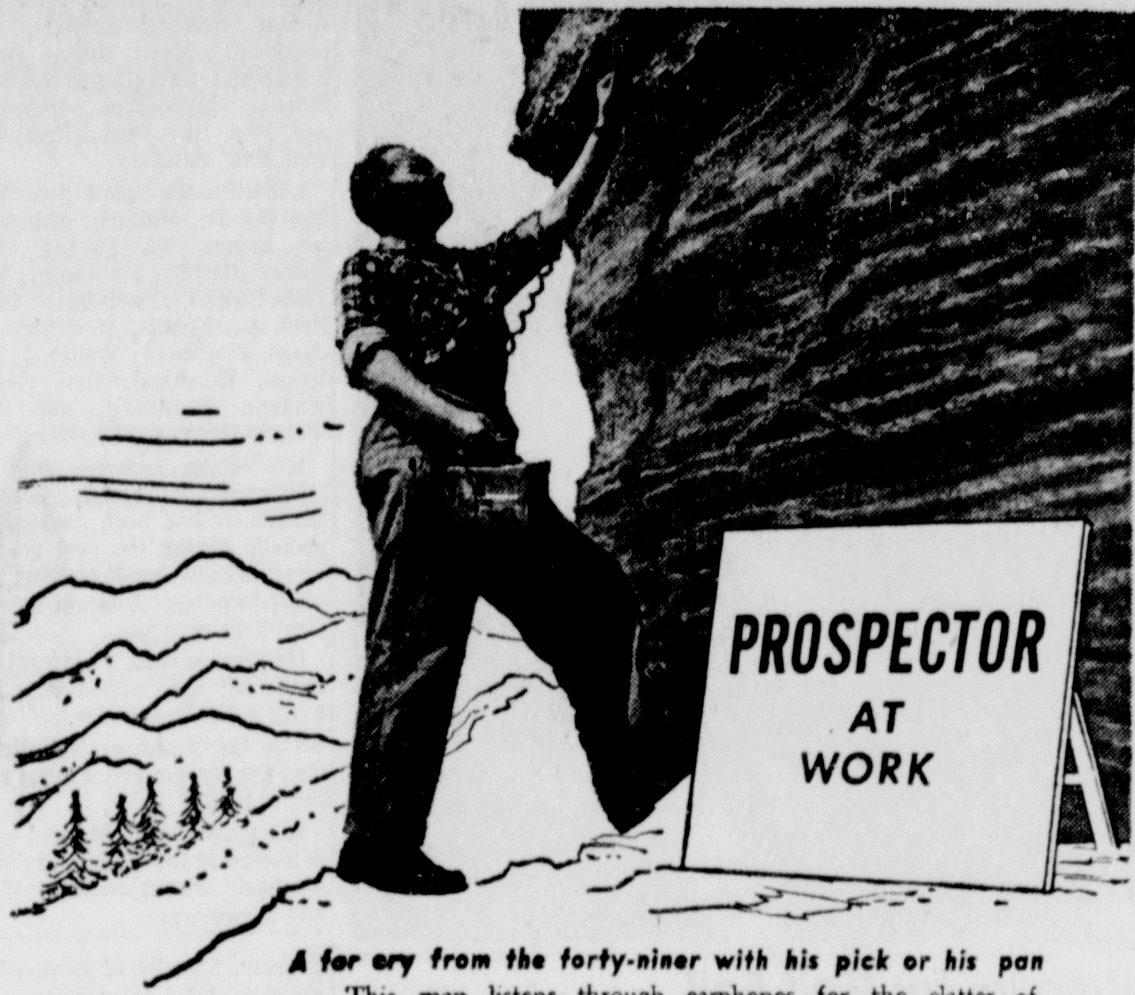

"Television has suffered from this predilection for gadgetry. It has been promoted enthusiastically by means of promises that it will perform in behalf of organizational self-interest. We are told it will prick the conscience of the lagging churchgoer. It will return religion to the American home. It will raise money. It will sell 'religion in American life' as slickly as it sells cigarettes. It will make pastoral calls on shut-ins. It will encourage a general attitude of acceptance of religion on the part of the public."

Parker said he hoped the churches would take seriously a recommendation by a study commission of the National Council of Churches that they "take a new look" at their mass-communications ministries.

He called for a missionary approach by ministers, pointing out that missionaries must develop a wide variety of communication forms and methods keyed to various mentalities, values, attitudes and patterns of thought and speech.

A for a from the forty-niner with his pick or his pan

This man listens through earphones for the clatter of exploding atoms.

Otherwise, he must follow the tortuous path of the prospector. Uranium, like gold, is where you find it . . . high on a cliff . . . deep in a chasm . . . anywhere.

There are spiritual riches to be found in life—by those with the determination to seek them. But don't make the common mistake of assuming that one Sunday in Church should satisfy the search.

Spiritual riches come gradually with religious growth. As a family makes worship and religious study part of everyday living, the treasures of God begin to accumulate in the character and experience of that family.

You'll probably be disappointed if you merely give religion a try. But your earnestness will be rewarded when you make Christianity the foundation of your life.

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . .

ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship. It is a storehouse of spiritual values. Without a strong Church, neither democracy nor civilization can survive. There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church. They are: (1) For his own sake. (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation. (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support. Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

Wrong Forces May Hurt Liquor-By-Drink Vote

EDITOR'S NOTE: While West Virginia does not vote on liquor-by-the-drink until November, 1962, both sides have begun preliminary planning for the coming battle. This is the first of two dispatches on the plans and expectations of the "wet" forces. The second dispatch tomorrow will outline the "dry" side of the story.

By J. RICHARD TOREN
United Press International
CHARLESTON, W. Va. (UPI) — West Virginia's leading "wet" is concerned that the cause of liquor-by-the-drink may suffer by becoming identified with the wrong elements in the community.

Chester R. Hubbard feels the liquor amendment should be ratified because, in his opinion, it will probably reduce liquor consumption, especially among minors, and thus curb juvenile delinquency; that it will help eliminate corruption and bring stronger enforcement of realistic liquor control laws.

At the same time, he foresees the possibility that the wet side in the 1962 referendum could be hurt if "some individual or group attempts to make a good thing of this for themselves to the detriment of the overall picture."

For this reason, Hubbard said, he would like to see work toward a formal organization delayed for a while "to make certain that any organizational effort will be a sincere approach to the problem."

The Wheeling attorney has been a leader in the fight for what the wets call "the people's right to vote" on the question ever since his first election to the House of Delegates in 1950. That effort was crowned with success only last March when the House and Senate gave two-thirds approval to the proposed constitutional amendment.

His Job To "Inform"
Hubbard said in an interview that "very little" has been done so far toward getting the pro-ratification forces organized, but that eventually there will be a formal organization.

"If nothing has been started by, say, late August, I'm going to say what I can do to get it going," he said. "My job—what I'm doing right now—is to gather information, statistics, from other states. Once that's obtained and correlated, we should start what amounts to a campaign of information, to spread this material around the state."

While he expects that liquor-by-the-drink, even though confined to eating places and on a county-option basis, will eventually increase state revenue by from 6 to 24 million dollars a year, he said that "revenue is strictly secondary."

"It wouldn't even be that much at the start, but enough to take some pressure off other sources, and this will be a factor in our favor," he said.

Hubbard said he expects much of the "wet" campaign money to come from hotel, motel and restaurant owners who might benefit directly if the amendment is ratified.

"We have had encouragement from hotel and motel people—people interested in promoting the tourist trade," he said. "I expect some of them to take a leading part."

Denies "Slush Fund"

"We'll try to see that at least one outstanding citizen in every town of any size is included in the organization, someone of outstanding character."

Referring to dry charges that "liquor interests" will provide a huge "slush fund" to finance the wet campaign, Hubbard said "I'll be surprised if the distillers take any part to speak of."

"The have nothing substantial to gain since experience in other states indicates that liquor-by-the-drink will not increase overall consumption. An exception might be if someone misrepresents what the effect of over-the-bar sale might be. In that case they might answer with factual statements."

"I find that the majority of those now engaged in illegal activities are working hard to defeat ratification, which is only natural. Most of them know they wouldn't be able to get a license because of their reputation or previous convictions."

"When you take this group together with the religious approach—the church organizations—it makes an extremely strong opposition."

"As for the campaign itself, I'd like to see a series of public debates between wet and dry leaders to clarify and sharpen the real issues. If necessary, I'd be happy to take part myself."

"I've sometimes asked to speak before statewide meetings of church groups, but haven't had much encouragement. But I have appeared before most ministerial groups in the Wheeling area. While they may never agree with me, they're willing to let me state my case."

He'll see to it that he and others on the pro-ratification side have plenty of opportunity to state their case in the next 16 months.

Secrets Of Charm

by John Robert Powers

Be Foxy When Hunting For That Fur

It's not too early to start thinking about your winter fur purchases. And it's a wise woman, indeed, who systematically gathers all style, quality and price data preliminary to making a purchase. It's just good sense and good business for any woman.

And it's an absolute necessity in buying a new fur coat if you are to make a wise decision. Before sallying forth on such a project, do some homework. Go over your budget to decide what it will stand. Call newspaper and magazine ads for information about the furs that come within your price range, complement your figure and coloring and express your taste.

This year you'll discover that there are a number of handsome, trend-worthy innovations. The loveliest of furs are manipulated like cloth so that the overpowering look is gone. The silhouette is slimmer and better proportioned with easy fullness rippling all around, just in the front, the back, or to the sides.

Although the size of collars has been greatly minimized, their shapes have more variety, often draping in several ways.

Your taste, figure, budget and clothes should determine the length of your coat. Fashion gives you a range from 36 inches to full-length. If your wardrobe includes many full skirts, wear one on the day you make your final selection because some coat lengths definitely are not right with them.

You will find all manner of novel effects in furs, some of which are not unworthy of your consideration. Whether you choose blood furs, flash linings or other striking fashions is strictly a matter between you and your check book.

A very important secret of success with furs lies in selecting a style that is evolutionary, not revolutionary. Furs worth the investment, be they mouton or mink, are never tricky.

Is The Centennial Too Commercial?

Is the Civil War centennial becoming too commercialized? Maj. Gen. U. S. Grant III, chairman of the national commission charged with guiding the observance, doesn't think so.

There have been complaints that souvenirs of all types are popping up all over and that too many people are trying to make money out of such sales.

General Grant says most of these souvenir items have been available for years. The centennial has drawn increased attention to them, that's all.

"While the sale of such articles does carry an unfortunate commercial flavor," he said, "it must be remembered that it also carries the remembrance of the Civil War story to a very wide public and especially to the young citizens of tomorrow upon whose wise patriotism our country must depend in the future."

There is nothing very objectionable in the blue and gray caps, Confederate flags and miniature Civil War cannon that make up the bulk of the souvenirs offered for sale.

The centennial has been tied into a number of advertisements by national advertisers, but these advertisements certainly have not been offensive. They generally depict some battle or event of the war with a suitable engraving or photograph and a description of the battle or event pictured.

Neither the national commission nor any of the state commissions has any control over the sale of souvenirs nor the advertisements. Nor do they share in any proceeds.

These Days

By George E. Sokolsky

What, On Radio?

When one travels on the road he might turn on the radio to listen to something. What he hears for miles and miles is Rock-n-Roll or hillbilly music, or perhaps a Polka in areas, where there are Poles or the crooning of a hoarse Calypso singer or the terrible vocalizing of a woman who has cultivated what is called a "sultry" voice.

Then on comes what is called news. It is the reading of short, crisp bulletins which may give some indications of what is happening. The best of news reporting has moved from radio to television. However, the news is a relief from the music and therefore is of some value.

You might ask, why listen? It grows on one. I generally turn on good music while I work. By good music, I mean such as has survived time and taste like Mozart, Bach and so on. Sometimes intermingled with such offerings are some modern novelties which may prove interesting for the moment or some which may last a little longer, perhaps half a century or so.

Just now, up in the woods, my radio is bleating an awful Polka that would have driven Paderewski to change his citizenship. It is a Polka written by an American with a trifle of jazz in the rhythm and perhaps a bit of hillbilly in its overtones. It is a chop suey, a goulash, a rubbish.

Radio program planners believe that they know what the public taste is. Actually, the public did not have such bad taste until they listened to these efforts at musicalizing on radio. Back in the days of Williams and Walker, that grand team of vaudevillians, there used to be what were then called "coon-shouters." They were singers who produced music in what was regarded as the Negro idiom. It was good listening although not quite as exciting as the sentimentalities of Gus Edwards. Even today, we are singing "School Days," and a tear comes to the eye. I have even heard "Sweet Adeline" sung by a barber shop quartette and the audience went wild.

The QXR theory of programming is delightful and when FM is used, it justifies the existence of radio. I am told that several stations in various parts of the country are using the QXR format and are doing well financially which only goes to show that nobody can be an absolute authority on public taste. Good music is nowadays stylish.

There is considerable selfishness in the talk about what the public desires. It is like the advertising agency's man who objected to the use of the name of Abraham Lincoln because the Lincoln is a competing car. Such brilliance we can do without.

Radio can still be very useful, particularly as so many use it in their cars. That has not yet been invaded by television. In the current congressional investigation of radio and television, much has been said on both sides which is more excitement than mature judgment. First of all, it must be recognized that there are no private property rights in the air. When we speak of a network, we refer to a private business which syndicate acts, shows, and whatever to stations scattered over the country. It is true that the networks own some stations but most of them are not so owned. Many radio stations are owned by newspapers or by publishing syndicates which also own newspapers. Some are owned solo.

At this point it needs to be made clear that the ownership of a radio or television station does not give anyone the right to do anything about it. The air-waves are owned by the government of the United States which has exclusive authority over them. The station-owner is licensed by the government to use a government-owned air-wave. The final decision as to what may appear on the air-waves rests with an agency of the government, the Federal Communications Commission which has, on the whole, behaved itself surprisingly well. It has been moderate in its rules concerning censorship. It has not interfered too much with the conduct of stations or networks. While occasionally a network manager or an advertising agent would like to forget where the authority over radio and television rests, most of the stations obey the rules and regulations, even if their programming represents immaturity and bad taste.

Memories Of A Last Party With Hemingway

By Joseph Alsop

WASHINGTON

The luncheon was pretty wonderful, for Mary Hemingway knows about food; and it was gay and full of life, too, for everyone there liked both the same jokes and one another. But the best part of the day was the cock fights that followed.

Even the arrival at the rickety little Cuban cockpit was an event of sorts, with its own procession, almost ritual character. Ernest led our small parade, unencumbered as was only fitting, with something of the air of being the host at a huge, exceptionally successful party. His pretty Irish secretary and the rest of us followed, bearing many wine bottles.

The country people can hardly have been Hemingway readers; but they seemed to know that a great man was living in their midst. Whole groups hurried to welcome him. An official of the little village offered his services as Hemingway's bookmaker for that afternoon. The climb to the reserved seats had the character of a major entrance. One expected the uncorking of the first wine-bottle to be greeted with general applause.

At this distance in time, it is not easy to disentangle the details of the ensuing hours. How can one ever tell, in truth, just what happened at a really good party? The essence of a good party, after all, is nothing but uninterrupted, steadily accumulating enjoyment; and this accumulation is really what happened.

Yet the long, hot, gloriously enjoyable afternoon had its own rhythm, nonetheless. The rhythm was imposed by the terrible but beautiful recurrent blood-drama of the cock fight. While the cocks were fighting, a strong, electric current of excitement gripped the whole audience. Both losers and winners, both those who were tensely silent and the majority who shouted their heads off, were then held in a kind of brief, temporary union.

In the intervals, the winners celebrated. New bets were placed on the next main. The wine bottles passed up and down among the people in our corner of the stands. And Ernest talked—about the war in Spain, about the Cuban strains of fighting cocks, and about many other things, including even Gertrude Stein, a common friend, whom he could not quite forgive for regarding him as her own private invention.

As the afternoon wore on towards dusk, the party's gaiety mounted. The wine and winning the equivalent of $1.50 were too much for a fashionably bearded young Castro-ite soldier. Starting with the pretty Irish secretary, he embraced everyone in our corner of the stands; and then went out and spent all his winnings on bottles of beer to supplement the diminishing wine supply. The last fights were the best, and people climbed on other people's shoulders, in order to see a tall red cock, famous in the district, claim yet another victim in a flashing, cruel, breathlessly exciting combat. Then suddenly it was all over, and the party ended in an enormous round of enormously, quite genuinely affectionate farewells.

Everyone who knew Ernest Hemingway even a little must have some familiar memory of a last party with him. The memories have a point at this moment, too. But the point is not that Ernest liked cock fighting as well as bull fighting; or that he also liked wine; or that he was a man whose love of life made him much loved by many sorts of people.

The point is, rather, that he cared so much about intensity of experience that he could conserve a curious intensity and memorableness even on a casual, almost accidental afternoon at a rustic Cuban cock pit. If one may make a guess about the inwardness of a great man and a great artist (always a dangerous thing to do), the key to Ernest Hemingway himself, and in some sense the key to his art as well, was his strong sense that all experience ought to be vivid and real and intense.

There was, perhaps, something a bit anachronistic in this feeling. The wish to experience intensely has become uncommon. Indeed, this wish has become all but anti-social in our security-minded, suburbanized, televised, homogenized, sanitized, endlessly bland era, when the most we ask for is togetherness at a backyard cook-out followed by forgetfulness with a Western on the tiny screen.

Who wants intense experience, nowadays, when all of life, or at least all of life for most respectable persons, comes pre-packaged, pre-cooked, and perhaps even pre-masticated, in neat plastic wrappings designed for the consumer's convenience, presenting no problems at all unless little children happen to put their heads in the pretty, left-over transparent bags?

A great change in the circumstances and the standards of our lives—the change one conceives so clearly if one reads Hemingway's pieces about his boyhood—is somehow underlined and emphasized by Hemingway's death.

In more than one way, he was an heroic figure, and he believed in heroism as well as pleasure, as every man or woman must believe who wants the human experience to be intense. But do we believe in heroism any longer? Do we even believe in pleasure? Are they, perhaps, going out of fashion, with no one on Madison Avenue to give them to much as a single singing commercial? The questions are nagging and troublesome, so they had better be forgotten.

President Warned Only Defense Of Berlin Is All-Out Nuclear War

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—President Kennedy today faces exactly the same showdown over Berlin that Dwight D. Eisenhower faced in the summer of 1959.

That was the year Khrushchev made his tough demands regarding Berlin, at which time the Joint Chiefs of Staff recommended that it would be impossible to carry out another airlift as Stuart Symington and the Air Force had so successfully done ten years before.

They based this recommendation on the fact that U. S. military strength had fallen drastically since the Truman build-up of 1950. They further recommended that President Eisenhower faced the alternative of either fighting all-out war for Berlin or talking to Khrushchev about Berlin.

This was the inside reason Eisenhower only six weeks after Dulles died, abruptly reversed Dulles's flat dictum that Khrushchev should not come to the United States and there must be no summit conference.

Today, two years later, the Joint Chiefs of Staff have given President Kennedy almost exactly the same recommendation. They have told him that another Berlin airlift is impossible; that there can be no defense of Berlin short of all-out nuclear war.

This, in brief, is the terrible decision President Kennedy has to make.

Most Powerful Army In World
This column is permitted to quote the confidential transcript of an intelligence briefing which shows the strength of Russian military might and why the Joint Chiefs of Staff have recommended that only nuclear war can defend Berlin.

The transcript describes the Red army as "the most powerful and one of the fastest moving in the world today."

Inside East Germany, the Red army has ten armored and ten mechanized divisions, plus six well trained East German divisions. But behind East Germany, here is how the confidential transcript describes the main force of the Red army:

"The standing army consists of about 170 line divisions totaling approximately 2,500,000 men. This 170-division force-in-being does not represent the whole potential. It is more meaningful when it is recognized as a nucleus for expansion."

"Within the first month of a war under full mobilization, the Soviet army can be 300 divisions strong. Also the Soviets have made significant strides in increased firepower and mobility by devoting a large proportion of their research, development, and production for that purpose," states the confidential briefing.

"The number of tank and mechanized divisions in the Soviet army has grown so rapidly that we are required to assume that, except for a relatively small number of special-purpose divisions such as airborne, the tremendous bulk of the Soviet army will be fully mechanized. Soviet marshals have predicted that the battlefield of the next war will be saturated with tanks—and the Soviet army has more than 70,000 tanks to fulfill that prediction."

"It appears that the Soviets believe that the best way to preserve and expand the USSR's position of influence on the Eurasian land mass and in the world as a whole, is to maintain large ground forces, organized to take full advantage of modern advances in firepower and mobility. They have the capability to operate on the atomic battlefield using nuclear weapons; but have also preserved a real capability in the event that nuclear weapons are banned. Under either condition, the present 170 divisions and the M-plus-30 total of 300 divisions with 70,000 tanks are certainly impressive."

That is the official U. S. estimate of the Red army's strength. Powder Keg?

President Kennedy is now being urged by different groups of advisers to take drastic steps in the Berlin showdown, ranging from partial mobilization at home to the sending of more U. S. troops to West Germany.

However, here is what the President is up against: The United States has roughly six divisions in West Germany. They are excellent, well-seasoned combat troops. However, the East German army alone has six divisions, and the U. S. Army would be so vastly outnumbered by the 20-division Red army in East Germany alone that sending one or two more divisions would be a mere drop in the bucket.

On the other hand, sending extra U. S. divisions would definitely whip up Russian propaganda that the United States wants war. This would nullify our best asset—the Russian people, who not only don't want war, but generally feel friendly toward the American people.

Kennedy, therefore, will be in a much stronger position if he stirs up no crisis but lets the crisis—if one is to come—emanate from Russia.

Any initiative by the United States in sending extra divisions to West Germany would only bring in more divisions of the Red army, until Germany became a dangerous powder-keg in which a false move by either side could cause war.

My hunch is that President Kennedy will stand firm without getting pressured into unwise powder-keg moves around Berlin.

What A Man He Was!

By John Crosby

I didn't know Ernest Hemingway very well but the circumstances of my first meeting are characteristic of the man. I had been in Venice only a few hours and I stopped for lunch at Harry's Bar and Grill, a watering hole made famous by Hemingway's worst book, "Across the River and Into the Trees." My wife and I were sitting on a bar stool drinking a martini when my wife pointed to a man seated all by himself in a corner reading a newspaper.

"That's Ernest Hemingway," she said.

This seemed altogether unlikely. Hemingway had just been severely injured in an airplane accident in Africa and, although it looked like him, I doubted that he was in Venice. After a second martini, I was emboldened to go Ernest Hemingway. He looked up with a pleased smile.

"Sit down," he said. "Have some wine."

He adored recognition and later, after he grew the beard, he became just about the most recognizable celebrity anywhere on earth. I once went to a bullfight with him in Aranjuez, forty minutes from Madrid. I doubt that Ava Gardner, stark naked, would have attracted any more attention than Hemingway with his yellowing beard, his huge barrel of a body, and those gleaming friendly mid-Western eyes.

But it was a little like meeting Plato. So great was his renown in the later years, that you expected a statue — something of marble or bronze, not flesh and blood. The weight of his prestige, I think, contributed to his undoing. His renown was crushing and when they added the Nobel Prize, it unbalanced him a little. There was a noisy group who called themselves, quite out loud — the Ex-Friends of Ernest Hemingway — and there were quite a lot of them. At the end of his life, he wasn't easy to live with. He drank. He quarrelled. He made, sometimes, little sense. Not long ago, a friend who adored him said sadly: "He thinks he owns Pamplona now. He's furious if you go to the feria unless he invites you."

But what a man he was! We in America — oh, hell, it's probably the same in every country — don't appreciate our heroes. It's part of our national cultural inferiority complex that we are the last to recognize what giants our writers are. Or were.

Hemingway shook the earth. The French, the Italians, the Germans, and even the English — though English writers seemed to have resisted him somewhat — wrote sentences differently after Hemingway. You could not, as a writer, read Hemingway and come away totally unchanged. His impact on style permeated to the bones. And in all languages.

I remember watching Picasso on NBC's "Wisdom" series climb a stepladder and slash at a white wall with a black pencil, creating a line of sheer aggressive self-confidence. Hemingway wrote sentences the way Picasso drew a line; they marched, those sentences, with a sculptural and terribly deceptive simplicity, with a musical inner harmony that had a rightness about them as if they couldn't possibly be written any other way, as if God had carved them out of stone, a sort of permanent enrichment of the universe. It's sometimes forgotten that the Nobel Prize was given to Hemingway, not for content, but for his shattering impact on the world's style.

Still, style is just the outer cloak of inner conviction. You can't divorce style from content; the one and the other went together, as inseparable as hydrogen and oxygen, in the air, in Hemingway's prose. Much has been written about Hemingway's death wish, love of death, and all that. I don't know. I think Hemingway loved life, every agonizing breath of it, and that this crept into his prose and is preserved there for all future generations to see.

When Hemingway wrote of waking up in the morning in his mid-West boyhood, of striding into a cold trout stream in the hot sunlight and of catching and cooking and eating a trout, I could feel the sunlight and taste the trout and the goodness of life. And not just me, an American. Spaniards could. Frenchmen could. Hemingway could communicate with anyone — across national boundaries and, I feel strongly, across generations. I can read Toystoy and I, who am not Russian, and God knows, not nineteenth century, can feel I know his people and almost participate in a life wholly alien. In the same way, Hemingway could take people of distant lands and distant cultures and make them, for the moment, a mid-Western American boy. He'd catch a moment in a trout stream and freeze it, like sculpture, in perpetuity.

He was lovable, infuriating, boyish, yet unexpectedly wise and above all true. True was one of his words. "True!" he'd say, if you scoffed at some of the wilder tales of Africa or Spain. Curiously, the wilder ones were the truest. His best tales like "The Sun Also Rises" were true tales about true people. Truth in disciplined order was what, in his best work, he wrote. You cannot ask for more of a writer.

Doctors Report Unique Case Of Bloody Tears

By Dr. Theodore R. Van Dellen

Some people shed bloody tears. This is not a new phenomenon, as the first report along this line appeared in 1581. St. Therese of Lisieux was said to have wept tears of blood. There are many causes of this symptom, including inflammation of the lids, disease of the tear ducts, vicarious menstruation, wounds, and hysteria.

A unique case was observed by two Mayo clinic physicians in a 2 year old boy. His mother was concerned because the child's tears were blood stained. She had noted red spots on the pillow and his cheeks showed pinkish streaks after he cried. The Mayo physicians did something to make the child cry (they may have pinched him or said boo). Reddish brown tears gushed from both eyes.

From this point on the story matches the best of Sherlock Holmes. The tears were tested in the laboratory and the stain was blood pigment but no red cells were noted. A few days later, the mother returned with the youngster and showed a small insect she had noted crawling on his lashes. It proved to be a louse, and many nits were found in the eyelashes.

These lice feed on blood and the clinic physicians assumed that the pigment came from partially digested red corpuscles. The lice were squeezed by the lids or by rubbing the eyes with a closed fist whenever the child cried. The result was bloody tears.

Injury to the uterus is not a common cause of miscarriage. Many thousands of pregnant women traveled safely by air, train, bus, or car during World War II. We know that activities such as long auto rides, dancing, bowling, bicycling, gardening, and even skiing and motorcycling are relatively innocuous during pregnancy.

According to Dr. Carol T. Janert of Columbia university, women are likely to blame a miscarriage on what they were doing just previous to the loss. But it usually is coincidental. Approximately one in 10 pregnancies terminates in a miscarriage, regardless of what the mother does; and three-quarters are produced by natural causes, such as abnormalities within the germ cells.

ECHO SYMPTOMS

M. M. writes: Could the ECHO virus cause pain in the chest and indigestion?

REPLY
Yes. Symptoms from this viral disease are extremely variable and range from mild respiratory or digestive tract discomfort to paralysis and heart involvement.

NOT THE SAME

W. H. S. writes: Is cirrhosis of the liver cancer of the liver?

REPLY
No. These are two separate conditions, although a cirrhotic liver undergoes cancerous degeneration occasionally.

COLD NOSED BIPED

D. F. writes: What does a cold nose mean?

REPLY
Poor circulation to the skin of the nose.

IS PSORIASIS INHERITED

T. A. writes: Is psoriasis hereditary?

REPLY
Hereditly enters the picture but the cause of this disorder is not known. We now believe the disease may be infectious and disappears when the individual develops a local immunity to the lesions.

ENDOMETRIOSIS AND SURGERY

W. P. writes: Does endometriosis call for an operation?

REPLY
Not necessarily. The answer depends upon the age of the woman, the location of these wandering uterine (endometrial) cells, and the amount of distress the plaques are causing. The new oral birth control pills may give effective relief. Send stamped, self-addressed envelope for leaflet on endometriosis.

FEARS FALLING PLANES

R. J. writes: I'm afraid to stay in my house because I fear a plane will fall on it. Do you think I need a psychiatrist?

REPLY
Yes—or paint a big white cross on the roof. Perhaps one of our readers may be able to give this phobia a name.

HYPERTENSION

M. L. D. writes: Is smoking a pack of cigarettes a day bad for high blood pressure?

REPLY
It might be. Why not have your blood pressure taken several hours after going without a smoke and then immediately after?

To the limit of space questions pertaining to the prevention of disease will be answered. Personal replies will be made when return stamped envelope is enclosed. Telephone inquiries not accepted. Dr. Van Dellen will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual diseases.

Try And Stop Me

A theatrical agent would have no part of an applicant who claimed he could do any kind of bird imitation.

"At least listen to my act," begged the applicant.

"Haven't got time," snapped the agent. "Bird imitators died with vaudeville."

"Okay, if that's the way you feel about it," concluded the offended artist—and flew out of the window.

A college graduate was having a tough time making the grade in a brokerage house. "Tell me," implored a partner in desperation, "why did your Uncle Herbert send you down here?" The Ann Landers . . .

Answers Your Problems

DEAR ANN LANDERS: In the past few weeks you've printed some very sad letters from girls who lost "the Great Debate" as you so aptly put it.

They sound depressed, disenchanted, lonesome, and in need of solace. Especially that poor little chick from Peoria—(36-22-36).

Would you kindly forward the name and address of these unfortunate girls? There are six guys in this office who would be happy to jolly them up a bit and restore their faith in the better things in life.

—AD AGENCY BOYS

DEAR AD BOYS: I'm touched by your interest in these girls. It's almost more than I can stand. And now—a suggestion for you: Why don't you guys devote all that excess energy to living up to your own copy? It's a shame to waste those gems on little old me.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: Help me, please, before I hang myself with the telephone cord.

My 66-year-old aunt phones me every day and yaks on and on about absolutely nothing. She seems to know precisely when I'm shampooing my hair, running for a bus, counting laundry or elbow deep in pie crust.

I realize she calls me because she's lonesome but I invite her to dinner every Sunday and I include her in my small family get-togethers. I don't feel I should have to spend one solid hour every day of my life listening to her on the telephone. It's getting so that whenever I hear her voice I want to scream.

What can I do about this without hurting her feelings?

—CAULIFLOWER EAR

DEAR CAULIFLOWER: Decide how much time you're going to give her every day. Is ten minutes too much? Then make it eight.

DEAR ANN LANDERS: My husband is retiring in December. He's in excellent health, experienced in his trade and is only 55 years of age. He refuses to accept a part-time job which was offered him at almost the same salary he's earning now. He says he is through working—and that now it's my turn.

I asked him if he didn't think raising seven kids was work and he said, "Work means earning a salary and you have never brought home a dime."

Prepare a sentence, place it by the phone, and read it—even if you must interrupt her.
Sample: "I'm sorry, dear, but I must run. If I find a minute later in the day I'll call you."

I have looked forward to the time when my children would be grown and I could take life a little easier. Now that the time is almost here I just hate to think of taking a job. Besides, I am not qualified to do anything but housework. What is your opinion?
—OLD GRAY MARE

DEAR MARE: A woman who has raised seven children has done as much work as any man. Stay at home and enjoy the last of life—for which the first was made. You've earned the right to take it easy.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Smith Hurls No-Hit Game In Rec Loop

Beats Bowler 7-0; Old Germans Lose

Rich Smith twirled a no-hit, no-run game as Sports Shoppe downed The Bowler, 7-0, yesterday at Naval Reserve field in an American Division encounter in the Rec Softball League.

Smith faced 26 men in the seven-inning no-hitter, walking two and hitting another while two batters reached safely on infield errors. He struck out seven in winning his seventh victory in nine decisions.

Don Decker was touched for a three-run homer in the first inning by Donnie McRoden who also smacked a single for Sports Shoppe. John Teter had two hits and Regis Fair chipped in with a double for the winners. Decker was the losing hurler.

The triumph placed Sports Shoppe ahead of The Bowler in the battle for second place in the division with a 7-2 mark. The Bowler is 6-3 for the year.

In another American Division contest LaVale Laundry scored 11 runs in the first inning and coasted to an 11-1 triumph over Alinco Club in a game halted after 4½ innings of play.

Donnie Irons pitched a four-hitter for the winners while Lancaster was the loser.

Bob Williams had two hits and Don Hudson cracked a home run for the victors. Clem, Ziler, Ken Gray and Schade shared the four hits for Alinco.

In the National Division of the Rec Softball League the Redmen handed the league-leading Old Germans their second straight setback, a 2-1 loss at East Side.

Allan Largent won his fifth straight game as he outdueled Ernie Condon who lost his second game in eight decisions.

The Redmen scored both runs in the fourth inning when Bill Sites led off with a home run, Jim Miller was hit by a pitch, went to second on a walk and scored on a throwing error.

The Old Germans came back with a single tally in the fourth on two errors by the Redmen.

Bill Sites had a homer and single for the Redmen while Willson and Carrella had singles and Shuck a double for the Old Germans.

Garrett Youth Killed While Cutting Wood

John G. Wilhelm, 18, Struck By Tree

An 18-year-old Garrett County youth was killed instantly yesterday afternoon when he was struck on the head by a tree which he had just cut down on his father's farm.

Victim of the accident was John Gerald Wilhelm, who resided with his parents, Thomas and Hilda (Minnick) Wilhelm, at RFD 1, Lonaconing, just north of the Allegany County line.

The youth was pronounced dead at the scene by Dr. James H. Feaster Jr., deputy medical examiner of Garrett County, who said the victim died of a fractured skull. The accident also was investigated by Tfc. Donald R. Wade of the State Police.

Authorities said the Wilhelm youth was cutting timber when the accident occurred. They said he had cut a 10-inch tree, and when it fell it struck another stump, causing one end to bounce up and strike him on the head.

Surviving, besides his parents, are three brothers, Blaine, Dale and Freeman Wilhelm, all at home, and three sisters, Mrs. Thelma Weir, Lonaconing, and Ada and Darlene Wilhelm, both at home.

He was a 1961 graduate of Valley High School in Lonaconing.

Services will be conducted Monday at 2 p.m. at Mt. Zion Methodist Church by Rev. Emory McGraw. Burial will be in Blocker Cemetery.

The body is at the Newman Funeral Home in Grantsville.

Empty Car Lands On B&O Tracks; Freight Is Stopped

A B&O freight train was flagged down by a city policeman last night after an unoccupied car plunged down a steep embankment from Washington Street to the railroad tracks.

The car, parked above the bridge on Washington Street, ran away at about 10 p.m. when the emergency brake failed. The vehicle landed on the B&O right of way at the bottom of a steep bank under the bridge.

Officer Kenneth Henry, dispatched to the scene in a cruiser car, lit fuses and threw them onto the tracks to stop an oncoming freight in time to keep it from striking the car.

Court Probates Wills Of Two

Wills of two men, both of whom died June 29 and both of whom had been employees of the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, were probated yesterday in Allegany County Orphans Court.

One was the last testament of John T. Shirley, who had lived at 711 LaVale Terrace. He had named his wife as beneficiary but she died several months ago. The will provided that the beneficiary should be Hildred M. Perry in case his wife predeceased him. The will was dated September 28, 1958.

Edgar A. Kendall, a friend, qualified as administrator c.t.a. of the estate under a $1,000 bond. Mr. Shirley had been a B&O train dispatcher.

Also probated yesterday was the will of Claude A. Kimmell, who was a 64-year-old resident of 220 Utah Avenue at the time of death. His daughter, Mrs. Edna L. Bennett, 1728 Crest Drive, Hagerstown, qualified as executrix under a $200 bond.

His entire estate was left to his daughter, and son-in-law, Richard J. Bennett, provided they take care of his wife, Mrs. Lenora May Kimmell, for the rest of her life. This will was dated June 6, 1960. Mr. Kimmell had been a pipe-fitter's helper for the B&O.

Pipe For Water Line Relocation To Be Delivered

First Sections Are Due Wednesday

The first sections of pipe needed for the relocation of one of the city's two 36-inch water transmission mains will arrive here next Wednesday, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light was informed yesterday.

He said the Orrie R. Sensabaugh contracting firm is clearing the right of way and will be ready to begin laying the pipe when deliveries begin.

The firm will lay some 2,257 feet of the water line which must be relocated, just outside the city line, in connection with a $941,430 contract for Route 40 improvements awarded by the State Roads Commission to the Cumberland Contracting Company.

The pipe being used for the new line is made of reinforced concrete with a steel core, and is similar to the original line which was laid in the 1920s to replace the original wood-stave line installed in 1912 for reasons of economy.

The line is one of two which bring water from the Lake Gordon filtration plant to the Fort Hill water reservoir. Each line has a capacity of about 12,000,000 gallons a day.

Engineering Department survey crews are scheduled to begin setting grades for the relocated line on Monday, Mr. Light said.

Playlot Has Crafts Show

Handicrafts have been featured this week at Virginia Avenue Playground and a handicraft show was held last night at the play center. A bake sale was held following the show.

Mrs. Puffenberger reminded all parents to register their children for swimming lessons to be held at Constitution Park July 24-August 4 at 11 a.m. Sixteen children have registered so far.

Bicycle licenses will be issued at Virginia Avenue July 13 at 1 p.m.

Plans are being made for the Intra-City picnic to be held at Constitution Park, July 13 from 10 a.m. until 3 p.m. Swimming in the park pool will be free for playground children. Parents are invited to attend.

Winners of last week's doll show are Anna Bittner, Rita Ritz and Marie Caporale, prettiest; Cindy Bittner, Edward Cartwright and Rita Ritz, most unusual, and Roxanne Crites, James Cartwright and Betty Poland, smallest.

Box Hockey Tournament Held Here

The City Recreation Department yesterday awarded prizes to three winners in the Intra-City Box Hockey Tournament.

One of the major events of the nine-week playground season, the contest was held on West Side Playground under the supervision of Mrs. Eva Hogan, assistant recreation director and playground supervisor.

Francis Footen, of Mapleside playground, was presented the prize in the pee-wee division when he defeated the runner-up, Jeffrey Frazier, of Pine Avenue playground.

Debbie Beckward, of Pine Avenue, won the intermediate division championship after downing Alfred Harris, of West Side playground.

Gary Stephens, of West Side playground, won the senior division play from Leroy Reuschel, of Johnson Heights playground. Directing the contests were Nancy Close, Donald Helker, Patrick Kenney and Mrs. Marian Wilson.

One of the most popular playground activities, box hockey is a vigorous game enjoyed by boys and girls of all ages. It is played within a box with simple equipment — a ball and two hockey sticks.

Another intra-city playground event, the Kalah tournament, will be staged Monday, beginning at 1 p.m., at Johnson Heights playground. The contest was rained out Wednesday afternoon.

The horseshoe tournament was held Monday at Pine Avenue playground.

Water Seepage Report Checked

Water found pouring from a drainage pipe on Pine Avenue resulted from ground water seepage and not a line break, Water Commissioner G. Ray Light was told yesterday.

City officials began an investigation Thursday after water was found pouring from the pipe which runs from the scene of a recently-repaired line break to near a manhole on Pine Avenue. The drainage line was installed to take care of seepage from a tunnel through which the 36-inch transmission main runs.

Mr. Light was told the profuse flow followed the heavy rain which began Wednesday night and that the amount was "down to a trickle" yesterday.

B&O 'Salvation' Promised In C&O Merger

Testimony Given At ICC Hearing

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Chesapeake & Ohio Railway Friday closed its main case for control of the Baltimore & Ohio system by offering testimony that the proposed combine "promises the salvation of B&O."

Dr. John H. Frederick, head of the business organization department at the University of Maryland, said of the financially well-fixed C&O: "No other railroad by affiliation and ultimate merger could promise so much support for the seriously-weakened B&O." He added:

"The choice before the American people is expedition of the voluntary merger movement or nationalization of our railroads."

Big Mergers Best
Cross-examined at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing by attorneys for New York Central Frederick conceded that large-scale mergers involving maximum economies would best serve the public interest. Central also seeks control of B&O or a three-way affiliation with C&O and B&O.

In an obvious reference to C&O-B&O opposition to any inclusion of Central in the transaction, Frederick said "The development of the unification process must rest on voluntary negotiations, and must be the product of evolution rather than government fiat."

E. S. Knutson of Dearborn, Mich., traffic director for the Ford Motor Co., appeared to endorse the C&O-B&O combine as providing greater transportation efficiency and possibly lower transportation costs.

A Central attorney asked him whether, if it is established in the current hearings that New York Central "will be destroyed" by this combination, the Ford position would be the same, Knutson replied:

Central To Start
"My answer is if we were convinced the New York Central would be destroyed, we would not support this particular action."

C&O tentatively rested its case after three weeks of testimony. On Monday, Central will start its rival presentation with president Alfred E. Perlman called as the first witness.

C&O Vice President Owen Clarke, in charge of labor relations, testified Friday that the combine his company proposes should increase rather than decrease jobs on C&O and B&O.

He said consolidations of operations would probably involve displacement of some 1,164 employees on both lines, but added that the major rehabilitation program projected for B&O "will more than offset" such displacements.

Bedford Woman Hurt In Two-Car Accident

A Bedford, Pa., woman was hospitalized yesterday afternoon on injuries sustained in a two-car collision at an intersection in that community.

Mrs. Mabel Barger, wife of William L. Barger, was reported in "good" condition last night at Bedford Memorial Hospital. Atchases said she sustained a laceration of her face, and possible knee and back injuries.

The driver of the other car, Dwight Beegle, RD 1, Everett, was uninjured, authorities said. Police said Mrs. Barger was traveling west on Pitt Street and attempted to make a left turn onto East Street when her car collided with the Beegle car, which was going east on East Street.

She was charged with failure to yield the right of way, according to Police Officer Robert For, who investigated the accident about 4:30 p.m.

'Music Of The Spheres' Project Will Continue

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The Navy denied reports Friday it may ditch its Sugar Grove, W. Va., radio telescope project, considered by some as one of the most exciting scientific programs of the space age.

"The Navy has no plans to cancel the Sugar Grove telescope project," a spokesman said. Printed reports suggested that increasing costs and construction headaches have delayed the project to the point where it may be outmoded before it's finished.

The telescope, in effect, would be a seven-acre circular electronic "ear" designed to pick up sounds from outer space never before heard by man.

Has Military Significance
Presumably, it could search the heavens for some sounds of life. Backers also claim the project has vital military significance.

One of the reports, printed in Business Week magazine, said complicated design problems have resulted in little progress at Sugar Grove.

"After nearly three years, construction has hardly begun," the article added. "No major work at all has been done in the past eight months."

It said the Navy spent $27 million on it so far and could close it down for another $40 million. Continuation of the telescope project would mean spending about $100 million plus $2 million annually for its operation.

The magazine said that there was "growing sentiment in high official circles to write the project off as a bad deal."

"One way or the other," it added, "the Navy must decide in the next few weeks what to do about its ill-fated telescope project; new funds would have to be committed before this fall."

Another View
Another national publication, the Engineering News-Record, cited spiraling costs, construction delays and changes in need as reasons for the possible scrapping of the project.

"The Navy is faced with the dilemma of whether it should pursue a trouble-ridden construction job that is decreasing in need, or junk the project and take a $67 million loss," it said. "The basic consideration is whether the need for the facility has diminished sufficiently to warrant closing down the project."

Navy officials said the huge dish-shaped telescope is about 15 per cent completed and is expected to be completed in 1964.

Phony 20s Circulating In State

BALTIMORE (AP) — The Secret Service said Friday counterfeit $20 bills printed in a New Jersey shop before it was raided last December still are circulating in Maryland.

John H. Hanly, agent in charge of the service's Baltimore office, said he considered the flow of fake $20 bills abnormal, but not as large as the circulation in other large cities.

Since Christmas, he said, phony bills passed in Maryland have averaged $600 to $700 a month.

Secret Service agents raided a Union City, N.J., printing shop last Dec. 3 and found equipment which also would produce counterfeit Cuban pesos.

Hanly said he did not know the amount of fake American currency printed before the raid, but "just as a guess probably half a million dollars got out of there into underworld distribution channels."

Produced through a photo-offset printing process, the phony $20 bills emanating from the New Jersey shop were not good imitations, Hanly said.

He said the counterfeit bill appears flat and dull and the eyes of the portrait are indistinct, whereas the portrait on a genuine bill is sharp and clear.

The paper of a genuine $20 bill feels heavier and tougher than the fake notes now being circulated, Hanly said.

Deadline Near For Naming Of Planning Firm

Recommendation Due By August 1

The final recommendation of the Municipal Planning and Zoning Commission for the selection of a planner here will be submitted to the Mayor and Council on or before August 1, it was announced last night.

The deadline was announced after the commission met with Arthur B. Hatton, of Werner-Dyer and Associates, Washington, one of the firms interested in preparing a comprehensive plan for the City of Cumberland.

Mr. Hatton outlined proposals of his firm for preparing the plans which would allow the city to qualify for federal funds for projects which include urban renewal.

The commission is scheduled to hold its last meeting of the series Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., when it meets with George T. Marcou of Blair Associates, Washington.

During the search for a city planner, which began several months ago, the commission has screened proposals from a number of area firms.

The commission has virtually eliminated from consideration several firms which are primarily engineering organizations, in favor of those which specialize in city planning.

The Mayor and Council is expected to provide funds in the 1961-62 budget for the first year of the planning program and hopes to get the study started by September 1.

Miltenger Cow Produces Most Butterfat

James E. Miltenger, Route 1, Ridgeley, is the owner of Louella (artificial), registered Holstein, which during May was the top butterfat producer in the Potomac Valley Dairy Herd Improvement Association No. 1.

The cow produced 81 pounds of butterfat from a total of 1,930 pounds of milk. Second place cow in the top ten was Virginia, a grade Holstein owned by Workman Brothers of Route 1, Frostburg.

The cow produced 74 pounds of butterfat from 2,000 pounds of milk. Shumaker Brothers of Rawlings are the owners of the third top producer.

Their artificially-bred grade Holstein, No. 154, produced 73 pounds of butterfat and 1,930 pounds of milk.

Harry E. Miller, supervisor, said another top producer included a cow belonging to C. W. Brinker of Springfield, W. Va.

The number of cows on test in May was 250, according to Mr. Miller, who said the average production of all cows was 948 pounds of milk, 35.3 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.71 per cent.

The highest herd of the month was credited to Mr. Miltenger who had 19 cows on test. The average production was 1,127 pounds of milk, 40.9 pounds of butterfat, a test of 3.63 per cent.

'Life' Prints Girl's Letter

The letter of a 14-year-old Wiley Ford girl is among those from across the nation which were published in a two-page special report on "A Great Urge To Help Flavia" which appears in the July 7 issue of Life magazine.

It is pointed out in the report that the photographic essay, "Freedom's Fearful Foe: Poverty," which appeared in the magazine's June 16 issue, has evoked a moving response.

The pictures taken by Gordon Parks in Rio de Janeiro's favela, and his diary about the slum family, the Da Silvas, and their eldest son, Flavio, have brought a flood of donations and offers.

In her letter, Jo Ellen Bean, of Wiley Ford, says, "I'm a 14-year-old girl who has no income except what my parents give me. It's sickening to look at my chubby, happy little sister and then look at the babies on the pages."

"We throw food away simply because there is no one who will eat it. I feel helpless, my hands are tied. But if there is any possible way I could help I'd love to do it."

TV Shows Worry For Carol Channing

By DICK KLEINER

NEW YORK (NEA) — They laughed when little 9-year-old Carol Channing got up to read the class minutes. And they are still laughing.

It was in that fourth grade classroom, back in San Francisco, that Carol discovered that she had the power to make people laugh. And, with two exceptions, astute producers have been capitalizing on that power ever since. Currently, "Show Girl," a new Broadway hit, is the present repository of the Channing wit.

Those two exceptions, she says, were two producers who tried to get her to play tragic or dramatic heroines. Once this happened in school; the audience laughed. Later, in summer stock, "Somebody had the wild idea to have me do Eliza in 'Pygmalion'. The first act, as a cockney, was OK. But I got more laughs in the second act, when I was supposed to be a lady. So I'm through with tragedy."

Miss Channing, a frequent and happy television guest, says she has finally solved a puzzle that has always troubled her about her TV appearances.

"The studio audience never laughs in the right places," she says. "I only recently understood why. The cameras always move in tight for the punch line. But, when the cameras are in tight, the studio audience can't see the actors. So they never laugh. They only laugh when the cameras are back and nothing funny is going on."

Emcees Display Musical Talent

Musi-C begins and ends with M and C and a number of the emcees of ABC-TV's daytime game shows display much musical talent.

Among the amateur instrumentalists behind the scenes are Johnny Carson ("Who Do You Trust") on drums, Bud Collyer ("Number Please") on banjo, Don Morrow ("Camouflage") on harmonica and Jack Bailey ("Queen for a Day") at the piano or on bass, cornet or trombone. For this "dream" orchestra, Jack Nartz would likely write the arrangements . . . in "Seven Keys."

Eve Arden will go dramatic for a Steel Hour in May.
